PARADISE DRIVE

If you're longing to travel over nice smooth roads

Not creeping like snails nor leaping like toads

Go directly east when from Purdy you start

And then turn south on the road past Arnhart;

Along beautiful lanes, farm-houses pass by.

Don't shift into low but keep her on high,

Through forest and glen you smoothly will glide

Along by the green valleys and rocky hillside

Over grades, thru valleys, around graceful curves

Not shaking your teeth out nor racking your nerves

No matter in what conveyance you go whether cart, hack or wagon or the finest auto,

You glide gently onward no danger or harm

Southeast in direction of Roller's dairy farm.

Just round past the cemetery you'll make up your mind

That you are now starting a mountain to climb

But "to and behold" no heights to ascend,

But 'round that steep hillside a smooth curve like bend,

Just give'er the juice and if nothing goes wrong

You'll soon pass the home of the Bobbin out song.

A spring on the east side, a tank on the other

And if you're not bean cracked you'll know "which from tother"

Then on up the valley without swerve or lurch

You'll suddenly come to Pleasant Grove church

And there on the spot decide as you please

You can take either road and travel at

JACK LONDON DIES, ILL BUT FEW HOURS

Widely Known Novelist Stricken In Morning Passes Away That Night—Never Regained Consciousness.

Glen Ellen, Cal., Nov. 22.—Jack London, the novelist, died tonight at his ranch near here, after a brief illness. He was suddenly stricken this morning and never recovered consciousness, although three physicians were hastily summoned to his bedside and took heroic steps to save his life.

He showed signs of recovery during the day, but suffered a relapse late in the afternoon and sank rapidly. Attending physicians diagnosed the attack as uremia in severe form.

London was widely known as an author, writing "The Call of the Wild" and numerous other books dealing with outdoor life, particularly in the north. He was noted for his brilliant descriptive passages.

Duty Prompts Action—Hannibal Woman Thinks It Wrong If She Didn't Tell of Tanlac.

Hannibal, Mo., Nov. 23.—Mrs. M. J. Zinn, a well known and highly respected Hannibal woman of 215 North Fifth street, made the following statement recently regarding the benefits she derived from Tanlac, the celebrated new medicine:

"This is the first time I've ever recommended a proprietary medicine but I feel that I would be doing wrong if I didn't tell what Tanlac did for me.

"For the last twenty years I have suffered from rheumatism, nervousness and indigestion. The rheumatism caused intense pains in various parts of my body and I was subject to frequent spells of dizziness.

"I bought Tanlac after reading about the relief it had given others. The rheumatism is less severe now than for years. The pains are not so severe and are disappearing now. The dizzy spells have been banished by this wonderful medicine, and, in fact, I feel better in every respect."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and the like and has proven a fine reconstructive tonic.

Tanlac is now being specially introduced and explained in Monett at A. H. Cox & Co's. Drug Store.—Adv.&w

And if it so be that more pleasure you seek

Cross over the ridge to that noted Flat creek

And if as at present the water is low

Then on up that "smooth sailing" road you may go

Until you reach Cassville our fair county seat;

Her people are friendly with plenty to eat.

But if however, you've been quite a sport

And must appear for trial or a witness in court

And compelled by the shortness of time to make haste

With scarcely an hour or a moment to waste,

Just keep straight ahead when that church you pass

Right on up Whittington's valley—but alas

Before reaching Butterfield likely 'twill seem

As if you'd been 'roused from a beautiful dream

And in all probability you then will feel sad

Still remembering the nice pleasant drive you have had.

Forgetting your haste you may turn right about

And travel back over the very same route.

Before 1920 I've heard people say

We'll plant ferns and roses along by this way;

We can then enjoy travel with auto or load

And Sig, if encouraged will carpet this road,

But as I am not writing for fame or

Your Bank Account

Is Your Real Friend!

You know the difference between a real friend friend and a false one. You know the people who are your "friends" so long as you are willing to spend your money to pay the price of their acquaintance—the social parasites and leeches who like you while you "go the pace," "stand treat" and hold up the big end of the entertainment. Instead of throwing your money to false friends, put it into a Bank Account, the true friend that sticks to you, protects you, takes nothing from you but gives you prestige, good standing, pleasures and educational advantages, property, a home of your own, and makes life comfortable and happy. Your account in our banks is your REAL FRIEND. Cultivate that friendship!
